Project Overview

Summary

A mosquito-focused campaign showing the backyard moments mosquitoes interrupt, from grilling and relaxing to kids playing and evenings on the patio. The creative positions PC Platinum as the monthly protection that helps homeowners spend more time enjoying their yard and less time swatting, spraying, and heading back inside.

*AUDIENCE PERSONA: Homeowners and families in mosquito-heavy markets who want to enjoy their outdoor spaces without constant bites, buzzing, or makeshift mosquito solutions.

Visual Details

- V1 – OUTCOME-LED: Open on an inviting backyard at dusk with people comfortably enjoying dinner, drinks, or time together outdoors. Keep the focus on the ideal mosquito-free-feeling lifestyle/outcome, using warm summer-night imagery before introducing Truly Nolen and PC Platinum as the support behind more time outside.
 - V2 – PROBLEM-LED: Open on the same backyard setting as mosquitoes begin interrupting the evening – buzzing, swatting, scratching, and people eventually retreating indoors. Use the “mosquito-imposed curfew” device with a visible evening timestamp/clock to dramatize the outdoor time being cut short.
 - V3 – SERVICE-LED: Lead with Truly Nolen expertise and PC Platinum, showing a home/ yard with visual callouts identifying common mosquito areas such as shaded foliage, under decks/ patios, standing water, and shrubs. Avoid spraying imagery near bird feeders; use the Truly Nolen logo or Mousecar as the branded visual cue instead.
- *Across all versions: Maintain the warm dusk/evening backyard setting, bold on-screen copy, mosquito visual cues, Truly Nolen yellow branding, and a strong branded end card so the messaging angle remains the primary variable being tested.

Creative Direction / Notes

- Ensure all copy is within Meta safe zones.
- Keep V1 outcome-led, V2 problem-led, and V3 service-led so the messaging test remains clear.
- Refer to the storyboard for the overall visual flow, framing, pacing, and frame-by-frame execution. Use the variation-specific copy and visual directions above to differentiate each messaging angle while maintaining the same core concept and structure.
